the land office was removed. The town was named in Lonor of the Hon, Wm. H. Crawford, then Secretary of the Treasury.

Crawfordsville is the site of Wabash College, of which a description and history is given at length in the Gazetteer, under the head of Education, to which we must refer the reader, it being too lengthy for our columns. -Eds. Sentinel.]

Crawfordsville has also a prosperous County Seminary and a Female Justitute of a high order. There are in the town about twenty-five stores and groceries, 400 houses and 2,000 inhabitants. The public buildings and many of the private dwellings are built with much taste. The fertility of the soil and the abundant water power of the vicinity, its beautiful and healthy situation, and the energy and enterprise of its citizens, which have done so much for education, and are now presecuting a railroad to Lafayette with much vigor, give assurance that Crawford-ville will be one of the best towns in the State. It is about forty-five miles north-west from Indianapolis, on the stage road to Springfeld, Illinois, thirty south-east of Covington, twenty-eight miles south of Lafavette, and the same distance north of Greencastle, in latitude 40 deg. 2 min. north, and 9 deg 50 min. west lon-

How to PRONOUNCE FOREIGN NAMES .- A correspondent of the Newark Advertiser suggests that the safest rule for pronouncing foreign names, is to pronounce them as if the names were English. He thinks it has an air of pedantry and affectation to pronounce them otherwise. He asks: Who, while speaking in English, ever pronounces Louis Phillippe thus—Loose Pheeleap, as it should Odilon Barrot thus-Odeelong Barrow : or, who in speaking of Paris, calls it Paree; or Lyons-Leeong ; or Milan-Meelano ; or Florence-Lorenze ; or Leghorn-Liverno. Yet, nearly thus would the natives respectively pronounce. It may be doubted if there be two booksellers in the Union who, if asked for Dan Key seow-tay, (Don Quixotte,) would not answer that they never heard of such a work. The suggesstion has reason in it, and is backed by nearly general custom; but, as the Advertiser asks its correspondent, what can be done with Hungarian or Polish names in the way of Anglicising them !

CURIOUS CASE OF WHITE SLAVERY .- The Columbia (Geo.) Democrat mentions that a white girl seventeen years old, named Mary Fann, who had been sold as a slave, by her inhuman father, two years ago, has lately been rescued by her mother from her servitude, in which she had been treated as a negro slave. It seems that Fann's wife had obtained, several years since, a divorce from him, and subsequently married. The girl Nancy was taken off by her father Fann to Wynaton, where for a blind horse and Jersey wagon she was turned over to James R. and Locomotive. Jackson, as a slave. By some means the mother heard of the situation of her daughter, and with the aid of lawyers and sheriff, &c., she recovered her child by a writ of habeas corpus. The public feeling culvert. and seller, the former of whom was a church mem- moving dirt, be remitted.

This fact proves that white slavery in Georgia is not so uncommon that a case of it is likely to excite any remark. This white girl was bought by a member of a church, was held a slave for two years, and would have remained a slave for life, but for her mother, who "by some means heard of her."

THIS Institution is under the care of Hon. DAVID M'DONALD and Hon, WILLIAM T. OTTO. Its superior advantages to the student of the law are now generally known and admitted. To such as in-tend to practise in Indiana, it furnishes peculiar inducements; for they learn here, not only the theory of law in general, but the prac-tice of the State courts, and the various and important statutory modi-fications of the common law which obtain in this State. The fact, too, that a thorough legal education may be had in this Institution with less than half the expense of any other Law School in the United States, is not to be overlooked.

The course of instruction, in this Institution, embraces all the branches of Legal Science. The students are carefully examined every day on their lessons in the text-hooks; and lectures are daily delivered comprehending the various subjects of Jurisprudence. A moot court is held every Saturday.

The students are divided into two Class — the Junior, and the Senior. The text-books of the Junior Class are Blackstone's Commentaries, Kent's Commentaries, Chitty on Contracts, and Stephen on Pleading. Those of the Senior Class are Kent's Commentaries, Chitty on Pleading, Greenleaf on Evidence, and Mitford's Equity. Students must supply their own text-books.

A good law library is provided for the use of the school. ents attending the Institution two sessions are, in the discretion of the Law Faculty and Board of Trustees, entitled to diplomas. Short of that time, respectable practising attorneys only, can claim them.

The tuition fee per session is twenty-five dollars, in advance.

Graduation fee five dollars. Graduation for five soliurs.

The next session will begin oh Monday the 12th day of November, and end the first of March following. Boarding at good houses is from $1-25 to $1 50 per week.
